CSI Aviation Executes Contract as a Medical Flight Services Provider for NM Health Connections

(Albuquerque, NM)—CSI Aviation will begin providing medical flight services to patients covered by New Mexico Health Connections (NMHC) insurance under a recent agreement between the two companies. CSI Aviation will now transport critically ill or injured patients who are insured through NMHC 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

“CSI Aviation is proud to become an in-network provider for NMHC members,” said Marc Ramthun, Vice President, Sales. “We’re very much looking forward to working alongside NMHC physicians, nurses, and case managers to transport their patients safely, quickly, and affordably.”

Since 2009, CSI has managed more than 400 medical flight missions and recently began using its own King Air 200 and 300 aircraft for medical transportation. All flights are crewed by accredited medical personnel specifically trained in patient care and aircraft safety.

“I am very pleased to add CSI to our network of air ambulance providers,” said Paula Hoskins, NMHC Senior Director of Provider Relations. “The addition of CSI helps NMHC stay true to our commitment to offer the highest quality service to NMHC members at an affordable price.”

CSI Aviation also recently announced a partnership with Albuquerque Ambulance Service, a division of Presbyterian Healthcare Services that has been transporting critically ill patients in the Albuquerque area since 1972, and which now provides in-flight medical teams for CSI missions.
