CSI Aviation Releases Names of Crew Members Lost on Aug. 5th

(Albuquerque, NM) CSI Aviation has released the names of the four crew members who were lost this week in an aviation accident near Chinle, AZ. The company's King Air was performing air ambulance services for patients in eastern Arizona on August 5th when the event occurred. No patients or passengers were onboard at the time.

The CSI Aviation crew included:

Jeffrey Tuning, Commercial Pilot

Amanda Benson, Commercial Pilot

Kameilia Chavez, Flight Nurse

Nicholas Mancuso, Flight Paramedic

"Our main concern right now is with the families and loved ones of the friends we lost this week," said CSI Aviation Chief Operating Officer, William Collins. "The collective heart of our company is broken. With great sadness, we offer our sincerest condolences to all who are mourning Jeff, Amanda, Kami, and Nick. We are sharing your grief, praying for your peace and healing, and believing without a doubt that none of these exceptional human beings, will be forgotten."

An investigation of the accident is underway in coordination with relevant authorities, including the National Transportation Safety Board, the Federal Aviation Administration, and local law enforcement. CSI Aviation is cooperating fully with the investigation.

CSI Aviation asks for patience and privacy for the families during this difficult time. All inquiries into this event should be sent to inquiries@csiaviation.com
